

New EPPP Candidate Application System: Critical Things to Know, Including Dates For Registration Blackout

The Association of State and Provincial Psychology Boards (ASPPB) will transition to a new web based application system for the Examination for Professional Practice in Psychology (EPPP) that will be operational beginning January 26, 2015.

The transition to the new system is one part of a much larger project, the shift to a new exam vendor. There will be an obligatory blackout period during the transfer of data and implementation of the new system. ASPPB is working to minimize the inconveniences to all exam candidates, and to that end, here are some important things you need to know.

Registration Blackout Dates: December 23 – January 25, 2015

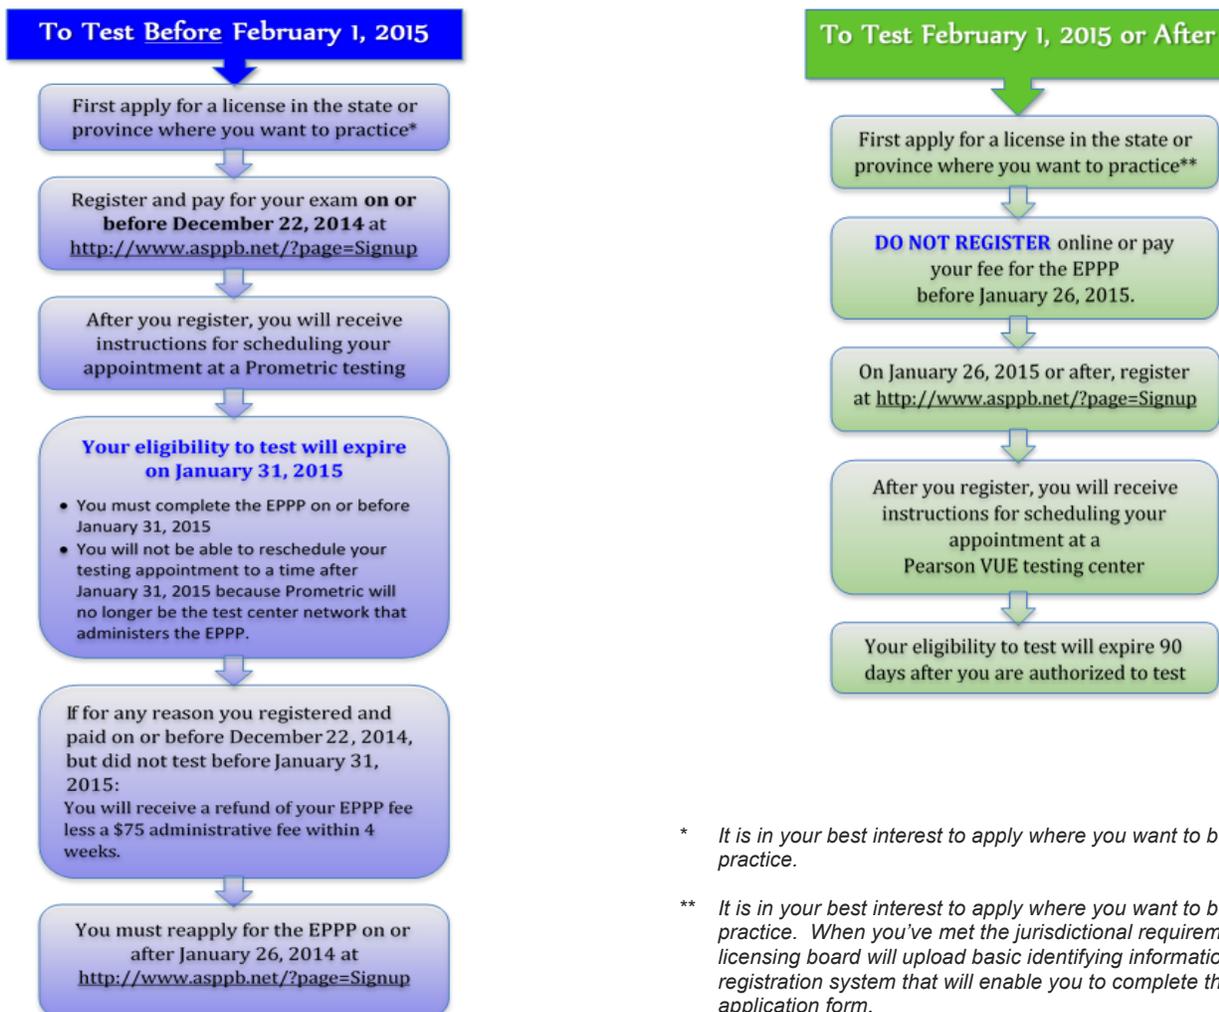

Important Transition Dates:

Current System: Testing at Prometric centers ends January 31, 2015

New System: Testing at Pearson VUE centers begins February 1, 2015

Timeline:

- Today through December 22, 2014 – current system open for EPPP applications
- December 22, 2014 – all EPPP applications in current online registration system must be completed, including fees paid.
- DO NOT REGISTER online or pay your fee for the EPPP before December 23 unless you plan to test not later than January 31, 2015.
- January 26, 2015 – new EPPP application system will be operational at www.asppb.net
- Testing appointments will be made at Pearson VUE testing centers at the time of online EPPP registration

* It is in your best interest to apply where you want to be licensed and practice.

 It is in your best interest to apply where you want to be licensed and practice. When you've met the jurisdictional requirements, your licensing board will upload basic identifying information to the new registration system that will enable you to complete the online EPPP application form.