REASON FOR THE BILL

Per the author, everyday across America, an average of 123 people die by suicide, making it the 10th leading cause of death.

In California, we lose someone to suicide about every two hours. It's an epidemic we must confront with every tool at our disposal. Research shows that three-quarters of those who die by suicide had contact with a primary care provider in the year before their death; and that about a third of them had contact with a mental health professional. The stunning reality is that many of the health professionals in best position to intervene with someone in crisis are not trained in suicide prevention.

A recent report from the American Association of Suicidology found that only about half of psychology training programs include instruction in how to identify patients at risk of suicide, bring them through the crisis and impart the coping skills needed to help them manage their condition going forward. The statistics are even more dismal for training programs for social workers, marriage and family therapists and educational counselors.

Research shows that effective training in suicide prevention has a marked difference in outcomes. Multiple studies have pinpointed intervention strategies with a clear track record at saving lives. Effective treatment options exist. But we need more professionals trained in how to use them.

ANALYSIS

Suicide is a critical public health issue in the State of California, where on average, one person dies of suicide every two hours and twice as many people die of suicide than by homicide. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's (CDC's) data show that, between 2000 and 2015, suicide was the third leading cause of death for Californians ages 15 to 34, and the tenth leading cause of death for Californians of all ages. Furthermore, CDC data also show that the overall suicide rate in California increased by 21.4 percent between the years 2000 and 2015.

Consistency Across Mental Health Professionals: With the passage of AB 89 (Levine, Chapter, 182), the Board of Psychology became the only mental health board in the state of California to mandate training in suicide assessment and intervention. With the introduction of this bill, as of July 1, 2021, BBS would join the Board of Psychology in verifying all licensees and applicants receive a consistent amount of training in suicide prevention and intervention. On May 11, 2018 BBS voted to support AB 1436 and its requirement that all BBS licensees have a minimum level of training in suicide assessment and intervention.

The Right Step for Consumer Protection: As the author stated, rates of suicide are on the rise. It is the mission of each mental health board to protect the consumers of their respective services by ensuring their licensees are properly trained in the necessary areas/topics affecting those consumers. By ensuring BBS licensees meet a minimum level of education or training in suicide prevention, this bill protects the consumers of these mental health services who rely on these professionals having the basic education and training required to identify and aid a patient with suicidal ideation in finding competent treatment.

LEGISLATIVE HISTORY

AB 89 (Levine, Chapter 182, Statutes of 2018) requires an applicant for licensure as a psychologist to show completion of at least six hours of coursework or applied experience in suicide risk assessment and intervention after January 1, 2020.

AB 2198 (Levine, 2014). This bill would have required a psychologist, marriage and family therapist, educational psychologist, professional clinical counselor, and clinical social worker who began graduate study on or after January 1, 2016, to complete a minimum of 15 contact hours of coursework in suicide assessment, treatment, and management before he or she may be issued a license. This bill would have also required applicants for license renewal who graduated prior to the January 1, 2016 cutoff date to six-hour continuing education course in suicide assessment, treatment, and management in order to renew his or her license. (Status: This bill was vetoed by the Governor.)

OTHER STATES' INFORMATION

ARGUMENTS

Proponents:

The Steinberg Institute writes, "We are proud sponsors of AB 1436 (Levine) [which] would require marriage and family therapists, educational psychologists, clinical social workers and professional clinical counselors to receive suicide prevention training in suicide assessment, treatment and management. Every day across America, an average of 123 people die by suicide, making it the 10th leading cause of death. Even as death rates from cancer and heart disease have declined, suicide rates have climbed for more than a decade. In California, we lose someone to suicide about every two hours. For young people in our state ages 10-24, it is the second leading cause of death. It's an epidemic we must confront with every tool at our disposal. Research shows that three-quarters of those who die by suicide had contact with a primary care provider in the year before their death; and that about a third of them had contact with a mental health professional. The stunning reality is that many of the health professionals in best position to intervene with someone in crisis are not trained in suicide prevention.

Last year, we were proud to sponsor AB 89 (Levine, Chapter 182) which requires all applicants for licensure as a psychologist with the Board of Psychology to complete a minimum of six hours of coursework and/or applied experience in suicide risk assessment and intervention. We are proud to partner again with Assembly member Levine to sponsor AB 1436 which builds off that legislation and ensures that all mental health professions receive the training they need."
